WILL HAVE MASS MEETING TONIGHT

Special Session of Council Held This Morning to Discuss Telephone Company Plans.

OPPOSED TO INCREASED RATE

Every Subscriber in City Requested to be City Building at 7:30 This Evening.

A special session of the city council was held at the city building this morning for the purpose of discussing the proposed plan of the Seymour Mutual Telephone Company to raise the telephone rates in the city, to become effective July 1.

As a result of the meeting this morning a motion was passed to call a mass meeting of the Seymour telephone subscribers to be held at the city building at 7:30 o'clock tonight. The members of the council, the city attorney and the mayor are of a unanimous opinion that the proposed rates to be charged by the telephone company are unreasonable and it is their desire that the one thousand and ninety-two subscribers in the city be given an opportunity to express their sentiments in regard to any action that might be taken in the matter.

John M. Lewis, city attorney, was present at the meeting this morning. He stated that there might be some legal action taken to prevent the proposed increase in telephone rates but he is of the opinion that the best plan would be for the subscribers to have their telephones removed providing enough people are dissatisfied with the action proposed by the telephone company and would enter an agreement to not use the phones so long as the higher rates are in effect.

Judge Lewis stated that so far as

Drill Goes Two Feet Below Oil Pool And Casing is Flooded—Gas Makes Water Bubble.

Otis Hays, of Brownstown township, on whose farm a small pool of oil was found Friday, declares that he is confident that a test well will be sunk on his land in the near future. T. R. Henley, an oil operator in the big Lawrenceville, Ill., field heard of the discovery of oil in this county and made a trip to the Hays farm Saturday. He said that he was confident that a pool of oil had been opened, but said that it is impossible at this time to ascertain whether or not it would be found in paying quantities.

Mr. Hays was drilling for water and the oil was found at the depth of 417½ feet. Jackson & Son, who have the contract for drilling the well, stated they had never found such quantity of oil before. After the oil was found the drill was sunk two feet farther a big vein of water opened. The water was forced up in the casing almost to the

PASTOR'S SERMON CAUSES COMMENT

The Rev. William Weiler, of The Trinity M. E. Church, Answers Criticisms of Address.

IS OPPOSED TO ALL WARFARE

Declares That He is Quick to Condemn Policies of the Military Party in Germany.

Considerably criticism has resulted from certain statements said to have been made by the Rev. William Weiler, pastor of the Trinity M. E. church during the course of his sermon Sunday morning. Some of the members who took exception to the remarks are known to have left the church as soon as they were uttered and others who remained have criticised the statements.

The minister spoke on the subject, "Are We Christians?" based upon the Acts 4:31-35. He referred in a general way to the duties of a christian and then gave illustrations, which he said were very general, in an attempt to awaken the people to their responsibilities. It was in this connection that the alleged unpopular statements were made.

Because of the general comment that has resulted Mr. Weiler was asked for the exact words which he used and he gladly furnished them from his manuscript as follows:

"Then think of our hypocrisies! When the Governor of a certain state permits a prize fight the preachers raise their voice in holy horror; but when twenty million men turn their infernal machines upon each other in mortal conflict they invoke God's blessing upon them and their infernal business. When they see the picture of a savage Igorot with a dozen skulls of his enemies strung up above him as evidence of his valor they consider him an outcast of human civilization, but when they see the picture of the greatest war hero of today whose greatest feat was the killing of twenty-five enemies in a single day single handed they hold him up as the finest example of Christian patriotism. When the rights of Belgium were brutally violated we were told that we couldn't retain our Christian self-respect if we remained neutral, and now we sit idly by while Japan, an honorable member of the league of nations is outraging the rights of Korea."

A majority of the members of the official board of the church upon being interviewed, stated that their views do not coincide with the quoted statement and gave as their opinion that the membership in general did not sanction these remarks.

When asked about the statements this morning, Mr. Weiler said that he did not know that they had caused any criticism among his members. He said that possibly one member left the church during his address as a result of the statements. He was convinced that whatever criticism resulted was due to misunderstanding.

"I am a pacifist and have been for ten years," declared Mr. Weiler. "I am a pacifist because I believe that Christ was a pacifist and I have no where found in my study of the New Testament anything that would indicate that Christ ever gave his approval to warfare. I had no intention of casting any reflection upon any one and probably I should have used a German war hero in my illustration instead of an American war hero.

He said that he had volunteered during the Spanish-American war, but on account of the short duration of the conflict and the large number of volunteers he had not been called.

"In the comparison of the Igorot and the 'greatest war hero of today' I meant that from the standpoint of Christ's teachings one is as barbaric as the other with the distinction that the barbarian or Igorot keeps his trophies as evidence whereas the modern war hero furnishes the fact of his bravery. The illustration as I meant it was based upon Christ's teachings. If we are to be really true christians we must come up to the standard."

"I am opposed to the German military party," declared the minister. "And I have been a pacifist. Because of this reason, and that fact that I am of German descent, some of my statements have been misunderstood." Mr. Weiler declared that he was true blue American and hoped to see the day when nations would be able to settle differences according to the teachings of Christ so that the international agreements would end all war and establish permanent peace."

MAY DRILL FOR OIL ON OTIS HAYS FARM

top. The finding of water prevented any further efforts to ascertain the extent of the oil pool. Mr. Henley said that if the water had not filled the casing he would have been able to give a fairly accurate idea of the oil supply. However, he said, the water well casing is too small for an oil well and another well will have to be sunk.

Mr. Hays was drilling for water and he was fearful lest the oil would mean the loss of his water well which has already cost him in the neighborhood of $500. However, he has been informed that a device can be placed in the casing that will separate the oil from the water.

Oil men who have seen the well declare that Trenton rock will be found at a depth of approximately 1,300 feet. Oil rock which is regarded as a good evidence of the presence of oil was found at the depth of about 400 feet. Another indication that oil will be found in quantities is that the water boils up the casing of the well due to the gas pressure. When the water was first found there was a continuous rumbling that could be heard many yards. Later the continuous roar stopped and the water bubbles about every four or five minutes.

According to the information which has been given Mr. Hays the finding of oil at the depth of 400 feet is a good indication that a big pool will be found after the Trenton rock strata is penetrated.

DRESSMAKER SAVED FROM OPERATION

By Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in Time.

Ithaca, N.Y.—"Three years ago I suffered from pains in my right side, so severe that I could not raise my feet from the floor. Pains would shoot down my limbs and through my back, and the doctor said I had an abscess. I was in bed two weeks with an icebag on my side and expected any day that I might have to go to a hospital for an operation. A friend came to see me and told me of your wonderful medicine — Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I began taking it, and after taking six bottles I feel well and strong, do my own work and do dressmaking for others. I cannot speak too highly of your medicine and recommend it to others who suffer with female trouble. It is a Godsend to ailing women, and you may use my name at any time."—Mrs. PERMILLA HULSIZER, 218 E. Fall St., Ithaca, N.Y.

LAUDS COOTIE EXPERIMENTS

Surgeon General Ireland Tells of Yanks Who Willingly Submitted to Inoculation.

Philadelphia.—A company of soldiers who faced death in a "battle of the bugs," to save the American army in France from trench fever, was lauded by Surgeon General Merritt W. Ireland at the Jefferson Medical college ninety-fourth commencement.

A class of 42 physicians was graduated. The degree of doctor of laws was conferred upon General Ireland and Vice Admiral Gleaves.

The "unsung heroes," the surgeon general explained, "submitted themselves as volunteers for experiments with disease-bearing cooties to determine the cause of trench fever. The men survived the experiments."

Surgeon General Ireland said: "As a result of the experiments with this volunteer group of soldiers we learned that trench fever is transmitted by the bite of this insect. This led to the elaborate delousing plants."

In a review of the work in Porto Rico to eliminate the hookworm the surgeon general said: "The death rate has fallen to one-half and the wealth of the island has increased tenfold."

HE SLEEPS ON WINDOW LEDGE

Thousands Watch New Porter Slumber on Perilous Couch in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia.—Office workers in the buildings near Broad and Chestnut streets and thousands of pedestrians in the street had the chill of their lives as they watched a man lying on the ledge of a window of the Land Title building, taking a siesta.

Entirely oblivious to the commotion he was creating, he slept peacefully on, his arms outstretched in luxurious ease, his feet sticking over the edge of the sill from which was a sheer drop of forty or fifty feet to the pavement.

His slumbers, however, were soon brought to an end when repeated telephone calls to the building superintendent's office told of the sleeper and his perilous couch. The man turned out to be a new porter and John, the head porter, climbed out, woke him and soon brought him "back to earth," both figuratively and physically.

It is safe to say that about 9 people out of 10 suffer to some extent from Acid-Stomach.

MORE RED BLOOD AND STEADIER NERVES FOR RUN DOWN PEOPLE

The World Demands, Strong, Vigorous, Keen-Minded, Men and Women

It has been said of Americans that they work their habits overtime.

Many become nervous and inefficient by overwork.

By worry, despondency, social affairs, robbing brain and body of needed rest; excessive use of tobacco, indulgence in strong alcoholic drink—excesses of every kind that burn up the vital powers so necessary in these trying times to make both men and women fit to be of help to themselves and others.

It is time to be temperate in all things. The man or woman with impaired nerves caused by impoverished blood lacks vigor, the ambition, the endurance and the keen mind of those who avoid excesses.

Timidness, despondency, fear, trembling hands, want of confidence and even cowardliness, are due in a large measure to abused nerves.

People with plenty of red blood corpuscles and strong, healthy nerves have no desire to shirk work and lean on others for guidance and support.

There is hardly a nerve-shattered man or woman (unless of an organic disease) in America today who cannot become alert and clear in mind; vigorous and energetic in body in a very few weeks and at trifling cost.

To become strong and ambitious, to feel that work is not drudgery; to have steady nerves, abundance of red blood and power of endurance; to be not only a man but as men now go, a superman, you must take seven tablets of Bio-feren every day for seven days—and take them faithfully.

Take two after each meal and one at bedtime and after seven days take one only after meal until the supply is exhausted.

Then if you feel that any claim made in this special notice is untrue—if your nerves are not twice as steady as before; if you do not feel ambitious, more vigorous and keen-minded, the pharmacist who dispensed the tablets to you will gladly hand you back just what you paid for them.

Bio-feren is without doubt the grandest remedy for nervous, rundown, weak, anaemic men and women ever offered direct through druggists and is not at all expensive. All druggists in this city and vicinity have a supply on hand—sell many packages.

BAPTISTS ENJOY SPECIAL SERVICES

A. Remy, of Indianapolis, Mrs. C. E. Goodell of Franklin, Dr. Albert Ogle of Indianapolis, and Rev. Albert Ogle who was pastor here when the present church building was erected. G. A. Berdon brought the greetings of the Woodstock Baptist church and an interesting letter of greeting and good will was read from the First Presbyterian church of this city. Mrs. S. H. Huffman and Mrs. E. W. Donaldson were given recognition as the oldest members with the longest continuous membership in the church. Mrs. Huffman united with the church prior to 1857 when it was located in the country east of Seymour and Mrs. Donaldson has had her membership here continuously for fifty-seven years.

After a solo by Mrs. A. P. Carter the sermon was preached by Rev. C. M. Dinsmore, General Superintendent of the Indiana Baptist Convention. He spoke of the age long quest of mankind for a vision of God. He called attention to Jesus' answer to his apostles "He that hath seen Me hath seen the Father" and also to Jesus' parting word "As the Father hath sent Me into the world, so send I you." It was strong plea for service by Christians who have first caught the vision of Christ in their lives.

At the evening service solos were rendered by Miss Anna E. Carter and Mr. John A. Barnett. The sermon was preached by Rev. Chas. L. Graham, former pastor of the church. His theme was God's constant care for His church. After emphasizing God's constant watchfulness, not only for the church as a whole, and the individual congregations, but also for the individual members of the church, the speaker urged the greatness of the opportunity which lies before the Christian church today and made an appeal that every member of the church measure up to the wonderful world opportunity for service which has come out of the war and the peace settlement. God has brought to the church the opportunity for the greatest service for the world since Christ was on earth.

The entire day was enjoyed both by the members of the church the former members who were present and others who were present at the services during the day.

Are You Awaiting The Great Crisis?

If So, Do Not Allow the Time to Pass With Nature Unaided.

Women who give nature a helping hand during the period of expectancy find that when the time arrives for baby's coming it is approached and passed with infinitely less pain and danger.

Thousands of women for over half a century have learned that in the time-honored preparation, Mother's Friend, they have a grateful, relaxing, penetrating remedy, the use of which makes it possible for them to go through childbirth without the usual nausea, nervousness, bearing-down and stretching pains, and that through its use the hours at the crisis are fewer and of much less pain and danger.

Mother's Friend penetrates the muscles, rendering them pliant and easily governed by the demands of nature. They relax gently and bring happy days and calm, restful nights. As the result the crisis is passed with greater ease and in less time, the breasts are kept in good condition and the skin is made and kept soft and free from blemishes.

Write to the Bradfield Regulator Company, Dept. P, Lamar Building, Atlanta, Georgia, for their Motherhood Book, and obtain a bottle of Mother's Friend from your druggist today and thoroughly fortify yourself for the coming event.

SPENT MANY YEARS IN WORLD'S WILDS

New Governor of Nigeria Saw Much Fighting and Had Adventures Galore.

Probably in all the British colonial service there is no personality more interesting than that of Sir Hugh Clifford, who succeeds Sir F. Lugard as governor of Nigeria, writes a correspondent in "The Manchester Guardian." He combines a sense of humor with great independence of character, and that is perhaps the most judicious compound for the government of our more distant possessions.

A member of the ancient family of Clifford of Chudleigh, son of a very distinguished officer, who counted the Victoria Cross among his many decorations, he was naturally intended for the army, but went from one extreme to the other by preferring the Malay service.

It is 35 years since he took this step, and he has seen a good deal of the wilder places of the world since then, for he was what some Americans call the "big noise" in Pahang for a number of years, saw fighting from time to time, and had adventures enough to fill a Conrad novel.

Nineteen years ago he was nominated by Mr. Chamberlain, governor of North Labuan, but, not liking the methods of the chartered company, which was his immediate master, he resigned and went back to Pahang, whence he was transferred to the West Indies, and thence again to Ceylon, where he was colonial secretary for a good many years.

In 1912 he became governor of the Gold Coast, and has disproved the sinister suggestion conveyed by the old story that a newly appointed governor of that district when he asked what provision was made for the governor's expenses should he come on leave was told that such a contingency had never yet arisen.

Sir Hugh is a charming author, and has written all sorts of things from romance to Malay dictionaries.

he had been able to find out the company had no authority to raise the telephone rates.

All of the councilmen present at the meeting this morning are anxious that some action be taken to prevent the higher telephone rates. All were in favor that the Seymour Mutual Telephone Company be allowed to charge enough to realize a legitimate profit but it is believed by the majority of city officials that the proposed rate is too high. Some of the members are inclined to believe that the telephone company is realizing a good revenue on its investment under the present rates.

The meeting this evening will be open to the public and the council desires that everyone interested be present. The chamber of commerce has been requested to meet with the citizens tonight and the telephone proposition will be thoroughly threshed out and some action to protest against the proposed rates may be taken.

It was stated by city officials at the council meeting this morning that already numerous complaints are being heard in regard to the telephone situation and many subscribers have expressed their intention of having their telephones removed as soon as the new rate becomes effective.

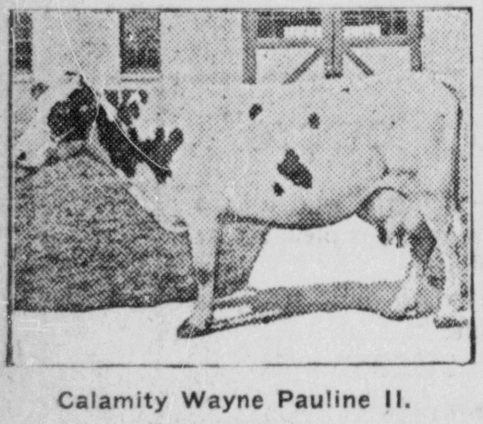
NEW QUEEN AT BELTSVILLE

Calamity Wayne Pauline II Completes Year Test, Producing Eleven Tons of Milk.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A new queen reigns in the herd of Holsteins on the government experiment farm at Beltsville, Md. She is as unassuming and peace loving as any of her subjects, although she bears the name Calamity Wayne Pauline II, and has just completed a test in which she produced in a year more than 11 tons of milk. In 365 days she produced 22,547.8 pounds of milk which averaged 3.805 per cent butter fat, the total fat being 855.4 pounds.

This animal was selected by dairy specialists of the United States department of agriculture from a Michigan herd in July, 1917. She was brought to the Beltsville farm, where she produced a heifer calf, and was started on her test December 7, 1917, at the age of eight years. The test was run through the coldest winter that section had experienced in 40 years, and a summer that was extremely hot. The test for advanced registry was conducted under the rules of the Holstein-Friesian association. During the year the animal was handled by two different herdsmen.



Calamity Wayne Pauline II.

A son of Calamity Wayne Pauline II has been placed at one of the government substations, and one of her half-sisters is making a fine record at the Michigan Agricultural college. Calamity's 305-day record was 19,256.6 pounds of milk, averaging 3.7 per cent butter fat, making a total of 718.13 pounds of fat.

All the dairy cattle on the Beltsville farm are used for experimental purposes, and will be given at least two advanced registry tests to determine their capacity for production.

SUPERVISE PURITY OF MILK

List of Equipment Necessary to Furnish Laboratory Is Sent Out by Dairy Division.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A letter has been sent by the dairy division of the United States department of agriculture to 1,500 health officers in cities having over 5,000 population urging the city governments to supply the health officers with proper laboratory equipment so they can adequately guard the city milk supply. A health department without a laboratory equipment is as helpless as a soldier without arms, says the letter. A city government has no right to hold its health department responsible for the health of the community unless it has provided the department with the equipment necessary to wage the fight against disease.

The work of supervising the safety, cleanliness and purity of its city milk supply is one of the most important duties of the modern health department. Bacteria, dirt, added water and preservatives in milk cannot be determined without chemical and bacteriological apparatus. The letter gives a list of the equipment necessary to furnish a laboratory for milk analysis.

DAIRY COW MOST PROFITABLE

Animal Never Fails to Return Profit for Feed and Care—Keep Her Comfortable.

The dairy cow is the most profitable animal on the farm if rightly managed, as, under ordinary conditions, she never fails to return a profit for her care and feed, if she is given the right kind of food and just the right quantity. If she is underfed, her product will be correspondingly small, and if she is overfed, she will be unhealthy. Feed the cow just right, keep her quiet and comfortable, and she will be equal in value to the goose that laid golden eggs.

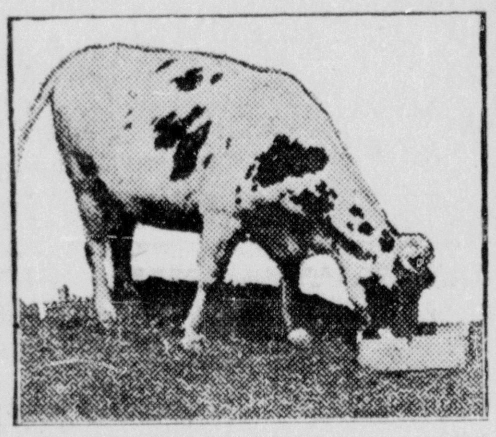
COWS INCREASE UNDER TEST

As Result of Work of Testing Association in Ohio Community Material Gains Noted.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The cow-testing association of Hamilton county, Ohio, which is composed of 24 members of the county farm bureau, placed 304 cows on test for four months or more during 1918. Of this number 131 cows were on test for the full year. In 1916 the cows owned by members of this association produced 4,126 pounds of milk and 175.98 pounds of butterfat a head. In 1917 the cows produced 4,721 pounds of milk and 212.9 pounds of butterfat, while in 1918 the average was 6,167 pounds of milk and 259 pounds of butterfat.



Although Apparently Healthy This Animal Is Positive Reactor to the Tuberculin Test.

The average gain a head in pounds of milk during 1918 over the first year was 1,981, while the average gain a head in butterfat was 83 pounds. The average gain of 1,386 pounds of milk in 1918 over 1917 represents a total gain for the association of 415,264 pounds. Figuring this at $2,975 a hundredweight, the average price for the year, gives an added value of $12,334.14 to the association.

The returns show there were no exceptionally high producers, but the average production of the entire association shows a very material increase.

COW TESTING ASSOCIATIONS

Increase in Butterfat Production Largely Attributed to Work of Organizations.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The estimated average butterfat production of all the dairy cows in the United States is about 160 pounds a year. From 80 yearly summaries of cow-testing associations, including the records of 26,710 cows, their butterfat production averaged 245 pounds a year. This is more than 50 per cent above the country's average production, and a large part of the gain may fairly be attributed to association work.

From every point of view, therefore, the cow-testing associations seem to be successful. Measured by the strict rules of the investigator they have made good; tried out in the field of practical experience they have proved true; weighed in the balance of public opinion they have not been found wanting.

DAIRYING ON BETTER BASIS

One of the Greatest Needs of Industry at Present Is More Attention to Breeding.

At the present time one of the greatest needs of the dairy interests in this country is that the individual farmer shall be more of a student of the fine points of breeding. Comparatively few now pay much attention to that. It is not so with horses. We take a great deal of pains to breed our mares to the best possible sire. We have learned that it pays to do this. We get colts and they sell for a better price when we wish to turn them off. The same attention might well be given to the matter of mating cows and bulls. If we ever get away from the thousands of cows that take our good feed and our care and give back not enough to pay for their keeping, we will have to get the best sires we possibly can and mate them with cows of known good qualities. Then dairying will come to a better basis. We will all of us be doing business at a profit.

DON'T GUESS AT PRODUCTION

High-Priced Feeds Make It Desirable for Dairyman to Test All Cows in His Herd.

Remember that the higher prices paid for feed, the less you can afford to keep a loafer cow in your herd. Don't guess. Weigh the milk. Weigh the feed. Test the milk. Don't guess by the looks in a tumbler. And you can't tell by a cow's looks, either. The milking looks of a cow is often no more than skin deep.

Rochette's Bonnie·

By completing her year's test with 17,382 pounds milk and 943 pounds butter-fat Rochette's Bonnie becomes the champion imported Jersey cow, replacing her half-sister, Rochette's Princess. Bonnie's record is the tenth highest fat record for the Jersey breed and she is the fifth Oregon Jersey to produce 900 or more pounds butter-fat.

Rochette's Bonnie began her test at the age of eight years and two months. In a previous test she produced 10,653 pounds milk and 572 pounds butter-fat. She is owned by John B. Stump, of Monmouth, Ore.

MORE THAN 27,000 BOYS AND GIRLS IN INDIANA CLUBS

Lafayette, Ind., June 30—Twenty-seven thousand, four hundred, seventy nine boys and girls are members of clubs in Indiana according to the semi-annual report of Z. M. Smith, state leader in boys and girls club work in Indiana. The organizations range from corn to rabbit clubs and include, among others, those of home garden, pig, poultry, dairy, sewing and baking. Practically every phase of farm and home life is covered by some club and statistics indicate that much is being accomplished by the work in the state.

Home garden clubs stand first in membership with a total enrollment of 19,674 for the 93 organizations reported. Pig clubs are next with a total membership of 2,220 for the 232 clubs. The corn and sewing units both have a membership of more than 1000. The membership of the other clubs is as follows; 26 potato clubs-158; 83 canning-974; 60 poultry 1898; 8 baby beef-60; 9 dairy calf -201; 7 beef calf-210; 7 sheep-101; 23 baking-210; 9 housekeeping-101; 15 rabbit-130; 56 miscellaneous-574.

Each club is organized with a definite purpose in mind and as a result, each has different rules with which each member must comply in working out the project of the organization. The corn clubs require that each member shall have at least an acre of ground while twenty-five bakings are required for membership in the baking clubs. The poultry require three settings and canning clubs require 60 cans for a senior standing and 35 for a junior. Only one-eighth of an acre or more is required for membership in the potato clubs and 750 square feet in home garden clubs. One or more pigs makes a boy or girl eligible for membership in the pig clubs. The baby beef, dairy calf and beef calf clubs require one or more animals apiece while three or more ewes are required before one can become a member of a sheep club. Three garments, together with "one patch and one darn" are the requirements for the project of the sewing clubs while a trio of rabbits makes a boy or girl a member of a rabbit club. Each organization requires that its members keep an accurate record of cost of production and time spent on the projects. Club work in the state shows a high degree of organization which aims to interest the boys and girls in practical work and develop them for future farmers and home makers.

USE BORDEAUX SPRAY NOW INSTEAD OF LIME SULPHUR

By C. L. Burkholder

Diluted lime sulphur is used a great deal throughout central and northern Indiana as a summer or fruit spray on apples. Commonly it is used at the rate of one gallon to 40 gallons of water and to this is added 1½ pounds of powdered arsenate of lead, for control of codling moth and leaf eating insects and worms.

There is no danger of leaf injury due to this spray as long as the weather stays relatively cool, but when the temperature runs up to 85 degrees in the shade or higher there is a great danger of severe burning of leaves and fruit when the lime sulphur is used. It is much safer to substitute bordeaux mixture for lime sulphur as this is as good or better fungicide than lime sulphur and incurs no danger of the burning trouble above mentioned.

It is made up at the rate of four pounds of copper sulphate and six pounds of hydrated lime to 50 gallons of water. The copper sulphate may be dissolved by suspending a salt sack containing the four pounds of copper sulphate in a gallon or two of boiling water. The six pounds of hydrated lime may be mixed with water to a thin paste. It is best to fill the spray barrel two thirds full of water and then add the solution of copper sulphate and while stirring this slowly pour in the milk of lime. One and a half pounds powdered arsenate of lead is then added to this solution.

Lime sulphur should never be used on grapes and potatoes at any season of the year. The above described bordeaux mixture is the spray which has given the best results. When the arsenate of lead is added to the bordeaux it will control the potato bugs and the grape berry moth. Bordeaux mixture also acts as a repellent to the flee beetle on the potato and the leaf hopper on the grape. It also controls brown rot on grapes and plums.

SLACKER HENS DOOMED; CULLING WORK TO START

Demonstrations of the culling of farm poultry flocks, whereby the loafing hens are eliminated, will be started by the poultry division of the Purdue University Extention Department in August and continued throughout September. I. L. Jones, of the poultry division, states that these two months are the best ones to carry on the work of culling.

Last year, the poultry department conducted culling demonstrations in 32 counties and requests have been received from 47 counties for similar farm demonstrations this year. It is planned to conduct a two-day campaign in all counties having an agricultural agent to go onto several farms, weed out non-laying hens and show others how to cull their own flocks. The work will be started in south part of the state and be continued northward. Persons interested in this are requested to see their county agent for exact dates.

A striking example of the value of culling is contained in the results on the farm of Mrs. Ben Hartman, at Rosedale, Parke county. Mrs. Hartman was handling 79 Barred Rock hens before the culling and after the demonstration had been given she weeded out 26 culls and retained 53 birds that showed indications of being producers. In a statement to the poultry department she said: "I fed 26 culls eleven days and they never laid an egg.

Army worms are making attacks along a number of sectors in Indiana. They may be controlled by the use of poison bran mash or prevented from entering a field by plowing a furrow around the field with the land side toward the field. The worms will be unable to clamber up the smooth side of the land and will die in the furrow. Directions for mixing the poison bait may be obtained from any county agricultural agent.

PARASITES CAUSE BIG LOSS IN SHEEP; CARE IS ESSENTIAL

Parasites are responsible for more deaths among sheep in Jackson county, especially during the summer and fall, than any other causes. Stomach worms are the most prevalent and destructive parasites during these seasons, but other parasites are present at times that cause much trouble to Indiana flocks.

After giving consideration to the many ailments that might affect sheep, it seems reasonable that the most important step to take would be to have diagnosis made by a qualified veterinarian if the symptoms of a flock indicate some disease present. To guess at the probable ailment and treat accordingly is trusting too much to luck. Good management is very important. This means providing comfortable quarters for the flock, arranging a pasture rotation, practicing dipping both spring and fall, and giving a medical mixture that will drive out or destroy stomach and intestinal worms during the summer and fall when they are most apt to attack the flock.

It is the intention of the Extention Department of Purdue University to hold meetings with the farmers who are interested in the sheep business, and also to hold special meetings with the local veterinarians, and by so doing try and eliminate some of the sheep losses in this county.

The Jasper County Livestock Shipping Association shipped its first load of livestock from Rensselaer June 7. The load consisted of 74 hogs and one sheep consigned by 18 different farmers. The hogs netted the farmers $19.74 home weights. One of the shippers with 21 hogs was offered $18.50 for his hogs by a local buyer or $60 less than he received.

Demonstrations conducted by Harvey Hilands of Jefferson county on the use of the hot water method to control loose smut in wheat, in cooperation with County Agent B. H. Doddridge, shows the practice to be entirely effective. The treated field contained no loose smut and the untreated portion showed a loss of ten per-cent of the crop because of the smut ravages.

Seventy-five farmers in DeKalb County took part in a livestock tour which was held there recently. The men were piloted over the county to a number of herds of pure-bred hogs, cattle and sheep, and heard instructive talks by Purdue University livestock men on the animals which they saw.

Indiana led every state in the country last year on the number of boys enrolled and completing the one acre corn growing contest. The state was second in pig club work, two of the most important lines of boys and girls club work.

GREAT ROAD BUILDING YEAR

Thousands of Miles of Improvement Arranged and More Will Surely Follow.

From the passage of the federal aid road act to December 15, 1918, 755 projects were approved by the secretary of agriculture. These projects involve the improvement of 7,867 miles of public roads at a total estimated cost of $57,632,000, of which the federal government has been requested to contribute $21,602,000. There have been actually completed to date twelve projects, involving a total of fifty-one miles of road, costing approximately $617,548, and on which federal aid in the amount of $260,660.19 was paid.

Altogether there are more than 7,500 miles of road, for which most of the steps preliminary to construction have been taken so far as the bureau of public roads is concerned. Numerous other projects not yet reported to the department have been completed or are under construction, so that the sum total of the road work now in progress under federal aid is greater than appears in this summary.

From Florida to Maine, through the North to the Pacific coast and down to Mexico road building work is going on. Every state has accepted its contribution from the government, and while no organized effort has been made along those lines to the present time, the states are working gradually to the system of national highways.

Coupled with plans already outlined for expenditures on the roads is the legislative program now before congress, which provides for $500,000,000 to be expended over a period of seven years by federal aid. It is estimated that in the event of the passage of this bill, which would make available immediately $75,000,000 for use in federal aid, it would be possible for the government and the states to build 34,000 miles of highways this year if labor could be obtained.

VALUE OF POULTRY MANURE

Increased Supply of Fresh Vegetables May Be Obtained By Applying to Garden Soil.

The droppings from fowls, if carefully saved and applied to the garden soil, will increase the supply of fresh vegetables. Poultry manure is rich in nitrogen and is well worth the effort it requires to save and apply. The droppings from an average farm flock will amount to considerable fertility during the year.

CHAPTER V.

In Which We Begin to Understand Our Unwelcome Passenger.

As I yawned and looked out of my cabin soon after dawn, about 4:30 next morning, there was no wind at all, and no hope of wind.

As I stood out of the cabin hatch, however, there was enough breeze to flutter a piece of paper that had been caught in the mainsail halyard; it fluttered there lonely in the morning. Nothing else was astir but it and I, and I took it up in my hand idly. As I did so George reared his head for'ard.

"'Morning, George," I said; "I guess we've got to run on gasoline today."

"There ain't no gasoline, sir. It's run out in the night."

"The tanks were filled when we started, weren't they?" I asked.

"Yes, sir."

"We can't have used them up so soon . . ."

"No, sir—but someone has turned the cocks . . ."

I stood dazed for a moment, wondering, how this could have happened—then a thought slowly dawned upon me.

"Who has charge of them?" I said.

George looked a little stupid, then defiant.

"I see," I said; and, suddenly, without remembering Charlie Webster's advice not to lose your temper with a negro—I realized that this was no accident, but a deliberate trick, something indeed in the nature of a miniature mutiny. That fluttering paper I had picked from the halyard lay near my breakfast table. I had only half read it. Now its import came to me with full force. I had no firearms with me. Having a quick temper, I have made it a habit all my life never to carry a gun—because they go off so easily. But one most essential part of a gentleman's education had been mine, so I applied it instantly on George, with the result that a well-directed blow under the peak of the jaw sent him sprawling, and for awhile speechless, in the cockpit.

"No gasoline?" I said.

And then my passenger—I must give him credit for the courage—put up his head for'ard, and called out:

"I protest against that; it's a cowardly outrage. You wouldn't dare to do it to a white man."

"Oh, I see," I rejoined. "So you are the author of this precious paper here, are you? Come over here and talk it over, if you've the courage."

"I've got the courage," he answered, in a shaking voice.

"All right," I said; "you're safe for the present—and, George, who is so fond of sleep, will take quite a nap for a while, I think."

"You English brute!" he said.

"You English brute!" he had said; and the words had impelled me to invite him aft; for I cannot deny a certain admiration for him that had mysteriously grown up in me.

"Come here!" I said, "for your life is safe for the time being. I would like to discuss this paper with you."

He came and we read it together, fluttering as I had seen it flutter in his fingers as he read it for'ard to the engineer and to the deckhand. It began:

"Think how many we are! Think what we could do! It isn't either that we haven't intelligence—if only we were to use it. We don't lack leaders—we don't lack courage—we don't lack martyrs; all are ready—"

I stopped reading.

"Why don't you start then?" I asked.

"We're waiting for Jamaica," he answered; "she's almost ready."

"It sounds a pretty good idea to me," I remarked, "from your point of view. 'From your point of view,' remember, I said; but you mustn't think that yours is mine—not for one moment—O dear no! On the contrary, my point of view is that of the governor of Nassau, or his representative, quite nearby, at Harbour island, isn't it?"

My pock-marked friend grew a trifle green as I said this.

"We have sails still, remember," I resumed. "George and the lost gasoline are not everything. Five hours, with anything of a wind, would bring us to Harbour island, and—with this paper in my hand it would be—what do you think yourself? The gallows?"

My friend grew grave at that, and seemed to be thinking hard inside, making resolutions the full force of which I didn't understand till later, but the immediate result of which was a graciousness of manner which did not entirely deceive me.

"Oh," he said, "I don't think you quite mean that. You're impulsive—as when you hit that poor boy down there—"

"Well," I observed, "I'm willing to treat you better than you deserve. "So, I'll say nothing about this, if you like" (pointing to the manuscript), "and if the wind holds, put you ashore tomorrow at Spanish Wells. I like you in spite of myself. Is it a bargain?"

On this we parted, and, as I thought, with a certain friendliness on both sides.

There was no sailing wind, so there was nothing to do but stay where we were all day. I spent most of the time in my cabin, reading a novel, and, soon after nine, I fell asleep in a frame of mind unaccountably trustful.

I suppose that I had been asleep about three hours when I was disturbed by a tremendous roar. It was Sailor (who always slept near me) out on the cockpit with a man under his paws—his jaws at the man's throat. I called him off, and saw that it was my pock-marked friend, with his right hand extended in the cockpit and a revolver a few inches away from it. So far as I knew it was the only firearm on the ship. "Let's get hold of that first, Sailor," I said, and I slipped it into my hip pocket.

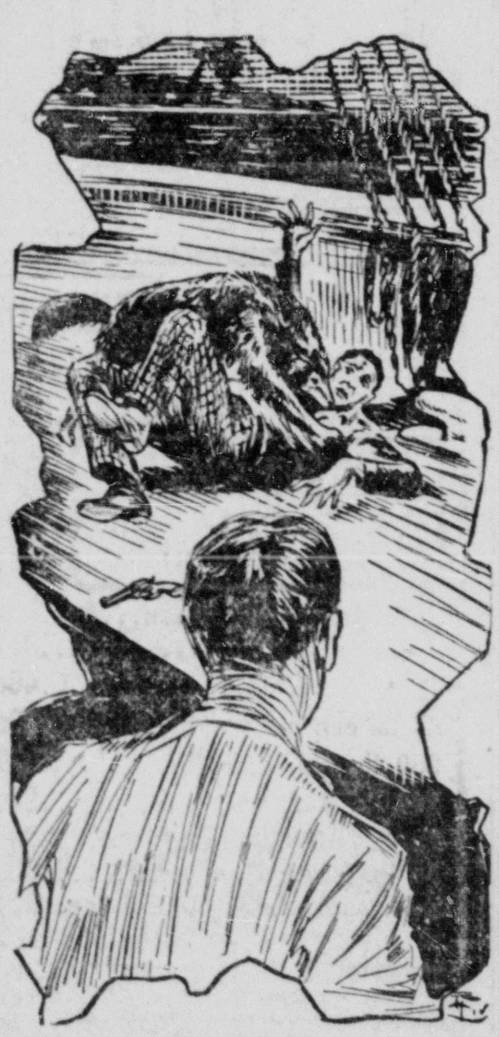
"Wake up, Tom," I called, and, "wake up, captain!" Meanwhile, I took out the revolver from my hip pocket, and held it over the man I seemed to grow more and more sorry for.

"We've not only got a mutiny aboard," I told the captain, "but we've got treason to the British government. Do you want to stand for that? Or shall I put you ashore with the rest?"

Unruffled as usual, he had nothing to say beyond:

"Ay, ay, sir!"

"Take this cord, then," I ordered him and Tom, "and bind the hands and feet of this pock-marked gentleman here; also of George, engineer; and also of Theodore, the deckhand. Bind them well. And throw them into the dingy, with a bottle of water apiece, and a loaf of bread. By noon, we'll have some wind, and can make our way to Harbour island, and there I'll have a little talk with the commandant."



It Was Sailor—His Jaws at a Man's Throat.

And as I ordered, all was done. Tom and I rowed the dingy ashore, with our three captives bound like three silly fowls, and presently threw them ashore with precious little ceremony. Then we got back to the Maggie Darling, with imprecations in our ears, and particularly the promises of the pock-marked rebel, who announced the certainty of our meeting again.

Of course we laughed at such threats, but I confess that, as I went down to my cabin and picked up the "manifesto," which had been forgotten in all the turmoil, I could not escape a certain thrill as I read the signature—for it was: "Henry P. Tobias, Jr."

That night we made Harbour island, and met that welcome that can only be met at the lonely ends of the earth.

The commandant and the clergyman took me under their wings on the spot, and, though there was a good hotel, the commandant didn't consider it good enough for me.

I liked the attitude they took toward my adventure. Their comments on "Henry P. Tobias, Jr." and the paper I had with me, were specially enlightening.

"The black men themselves," they both agreed, "are all right, except, of course, here and there. It's fellows like this precious Tobias, real white trash—the negroes' name for them is apt enough—that are the danger for the friendship of both races. And it's the vein of a sort of a literary idealism in a fellow like Tobias that makes him the more dangerous. He's not all to the bad—"

"I couldn't help thinking that too," I interrupted.

"Oh, no," they said, "but he's a bit mad, too. That's his trouble. He's got a personal, as well as an abstract, grudge against the British government."

"Treasure?" I laughed.

"How did you know?" they asked.

"Never mind; I somehow got the idea."

"Take a word of advice. Have a few guns with you, for you're liable to need them."

"I agree," I remarked. "I'll take the guns all right, but I'm afraid I'll need some more crew. I mean I'll want an engineer, and another deckhand."

And, just as I said this, there came up some one post-haste from the village; some one, too, that wanted the clergyman, as well as me, for my captain was ill, and at the point of death.

"What on earth can be the trouble?" I said, but, the three of us, including the commandant went.

We found the captain lying in his berth, writhing with cramps.

"What on earth have you been doing with yourself, Cap?" I asked.

"I did nothing, sir, but eat my dinner, and drink that claret you were kind enough to give me."

"The half-bottle of claret?"

"Yes, sir, the very same."

"Well, there was nothing to hurt you in that," I said. "Did you take it half and half with water, as I told you?"

"I did indeed, sir."

"It's very funny," I said. And then as he began to writhe and stiffen, I called out to Tom: "Get some rum, Tom, and make it boiling hot, quick—quick! We must get him into a sweat."

Very soon we did. Then I said to Tom:

"What do you make out of this smell that's coming from him, Tom?"

"Kerosene, sar," said Tom.

"I thought the very same," I said.

Tom beckoned me to go with him to the galley, and showed me several quart bottles of water standing on a shelf.

"Two of these were kerosene," he said "and I suppose Cap made a mistake;" for one looked as clear as the other.

Then I took one of them back to the captain.

"Was it a bottle like this you mixed with the claret?" I asked.

"Sure it was, sir," he answered, writhing hard with the cramps.

"But man!" I said. "Couldn't you tell the difference between that and water?"

"I thought it tasted funny, boss, but I wasn't used to claret."

And then we had to laugh again, and I thought old Tom would die.

"A nigger's stomach and his head," said the commandant, "are about the same. I really don't know which is the stronger."

The captain didn't die, though he came pretty near to it. In fact, he took so long getting on his feet, that we couldn't wait for him; so we had practically to look out for a new crew, with the exception of Tom, and Sailor. The commandant proved a good friend to us in this, choosing three somewhat characterless men, with good "characters."

As we said goodby, with a spanking southwest breeze blowing, I could see that he was a little anxious about me.

"Take care of yourself," he said, "for you must remember none of us can take care of you. There's no settlement where you're going—no telegraph or wireless; you could be murdered, and none of us hear of it for a month, or forever. And the fellows you're after are a dangerous lot, take my word for it. Keep a good watch on your guns, and we'll be on the lookout for the first news of you, and anything we can do we'll be there, you bet."

HUSKY MEMBER OF CONGRESS

© HARRIS & EWING

Representative Lucien W. Parrish of Henrietta, Tex., is a fellow townsman of "Tex" Rickard, promoter of the Willard-Dempsey match. If Parrish had decided to enter the fighting game instead of law, agriculture and oil, "Tex" might have made a fortune out of managing him. Parrish is younger than Jess Willard and just as husky. He stands 6 feet 2 inches and weighs 240 pounds. He played football in Texas university for four years without missing a game and hung up a new southern record for shot-putting. He has made a fortune out of petroleum since his college days.

Eats a Thousand Insects a Day.

"A cliff swallow will eat a thousand flies, mosquitoes, wheat midgets or beetles that injure fruit trees in a day and therefore is to be encouraged," says the American Forestry association of Washington.

"This bird is also known as the cave swallow, because it plasters its nest on the outside of a barn or other building up under the eaves. Colonies of several thousand will build their nests together on the side of a cliff. These nests shaped like a flattened gourd or water bottle are made of bits of clay rolled into pellets and lined with straw or feathers. This bird winters in the tropics."

Second Dead Sea Off English Coast.

London.—A sea in which nothing may live has come into being off the southeast coast of England. It is a second Dead sea.

Formerly this sea abounded in life. It was the home of the succulent shrimp, the merry mussel, the winsome whelk and the coy cockle. Now the natural home of those domestic dainties has fallen under a blight, and they have been obliged to pack up their shells and silently steal away.

Pegwell bay is where the Dead sea lies. It was once the most famous of the shell-fish areas. Its downfall is traced to the sinking of an oil tank steamer early in the war. The vessel was torpedoed one night and thousands of gallons of crude oil flooded over the Downs.

The oil swamped the haunts of shrimp, mussel, whelk and cockle. They were lubricated to death. Further sinkings caused more poison to invade the shellfish beds, the shrimps' breeding waters, and now the whole area is dead.

SONG CYCLE "IN A PERSIAN GARDEN" GIVEN BY METROPOLITAN QUARTET ON LAST DAY OF CHAUTAUQUA

METROPOLITAN QUARTET.

The song cycle, "In a Persian Garden," will be a feature of the program given by the Metropolitan Quartet on the last afternoon of the coming Redpath Chautauqua.

The words of the cycle are selected from the Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam and the music was composed by Liza Lehman. The cycle will be a delightful musical event.

In the afternoon the quartet will give a full concert composed, in addition to the song cycle, of selections from grand opera and songs of a more popular character. At night the Metropolitans will give a thirty minute prelude to the joy night program of Alton Packard.

Warns Against Societies.

A man in the East is ambitious to print a book. In order to finance it, he has organized a national society with a big name, and appointed vice presidents in nearly every state in the Union. You may think this is an absurd statement. I can show you a printed circular containing the names and particulars; I have been asked to join. Beware of societies; they are becoming very numerous, absurd, and harmful.—E. W. Howe's Monthly.

Hez Hooper Sez:

"Run into Bud Sparks this morning down at the grocery store. 'Howdy, Hez,' he said, 'missed you Saturday. Anything wrong?' "Well no, except that I couldn't find enough help to get all the wheat cut Saturday, and had to follow the binder myself; so I couldn't get into town until late Saturday night."

"How's the crop look?" Bud inquired. "Never looked better; goin' to be a bumper. Ought to make a litle money off of the wheat this year, figurin' it at $2.26 per."

"Remember how we used to dream of dollar wheat, Hez. Only a few short years ago, too? Well, its only right that we should be gettin' good money for our crops, for they sure hang about three prices on you when you go to buy anything these days."

"Yes, that's right. I'm hopin' to make enough money off my wheat this year to off-set the money my telephone company stock is losin' for me. They're losin' over $500.00 a month right along now."

"How's that?"

"Low rates; lowest in the State. Same rates now they were chargin' long before the war was being thought of, by anyone exceptin' the Hohenzollern tribe."

"Well, Hez, I ain't exactly particularly keen 'bout payin' more for my phone, but I wouldn't expect the man who sells me my groceries, or my shoes, or my clothin', or my coal, to sell it to me at a loss, because I know it'd only be a matter of time until he's have to quit. So why should I expect your company to sell me telephone service at a loss? I don't think any fair minded fellow will begrudge you a reasonable return on your investment."

"No," said all of the business men I've talked to in the last week have agreed we ought to have at least 6 per cent."

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

The Ford One Ton Truck may well be classed as an agricultural necessity, it fits into and fills so many wants on the farm. It is a reliable bearer of farm burdens, not only doing the work of several horses quicker and better than the horse, and does not "eat its head off" when not working. The aggressive farmer has only to consider the possibilities of the Ford truck and he is ready to buy one. We judge this to be so from the way farmers are buying them. Truck Chassis $550 f. o. b.
